LAWSON'S DRY HILLS

Marlborough, New Zealand

The dedicated bunch of people that make up our small team at Lawson's Dry Hills are very 'hands on', living and breathing every part of the viticultural and winemaking process. We do a lot of talking and tasting before pouring our shared inspiration into every bottle.

The resulting wines offer an authentic expression of the place and the grape variety they are made from together with a certain special something that we believe can only come from passion.

It would seem that the combination of elements that go into each of our wines is a winning formula. We have lost count of all our gold medals – the certificates cover the walls in our cellar door while the shelves are buckling with the weight of all our trophies – both local and overseas. But actually we're not ones to boast so that's enough of that. We'd rather roll our sleeves up and get stuck in to making the best wines possible, after all, that's what we dream of, talk about and well, it's actually what we do.
